YEAR END LETTER FROM THE COMMANDER

 HONOR ***

Honor is a word having lots of meaning and emotion attached to it. In some places it is a position of esteem such as the “Honorable”. It is also a sign of respect and recognition to be “Honored”. It can also mean respect for bringing credit to an organization such as, “I would be Honored”. There are times when it conjures a sense of ethical conduct when described as a person of “Honor”, or militarily to serve with “Honor”.

As this year comes to a close, and we look forward to 2018, my personal pride for every member of the Sons of the American Revolution, choosing to participate in one or more Color Guard events, makes my heart swell.

When I took command in May, my first duty was to honor one of our fallen compatriots, Darrell Holt. His love of the Color Guard and SAR gave us the opportunity to show our respect by posting the colors and Honoring his final resting place.

On July 4th, once again, a sign of respect and recognition presented itself when the Color Guard was asked to lead the Steilacoom Parade. No greater honor could have improved our parade pride. As descendants of the American Revolution, celebrating the signing of the Declaration of Independence, leading the parade honors everyone in attendance, and especially the SAR, because our families were here when it was signed.

From Woodinville, to Black Diamond, we proudly drummed, fided and marched, displaying our heritage, honoring those whose courage and commitment provided us with the freedoms we enjoy today.

From Labor Day, Veterans Day, to Wreaths across America, our respect given to patriot ancestors, in conjunction with our respect to past veterans, and those who have, are, or will serve in the future, it is our Honor to be there.

During this time of love, family, and sharing, I wish all of you, Joy and the Happiest of Holidays. It is my Honor to be your Color Guard Commander.

WASHINGTON STATE COLOR GUARD WANTS YOU!

Unlike any other component of the Sons of the American Revolution (SAR), the Color Guard provides newly inducted SAR members with multiple opportunities and challenges to do something meaningful with those handsome membership-certificates. Besides being a lot of fun, and a great way to form lasting friendships with other compatriots, the Color Guard is an excellent way to become an active participant in fulfilling the over-arching mission of our great organization.

After all, where else but the Color Guard would you ever be given the opportunity to march in parades, participate in "Honor-Flight" homecoming welcomes for WWII veterans, post colors and congratulate new Americans at Citizenship ceremonies, honor individuals and businesses with Flag-Certificates, or teach our great American heritage to classrooms full of eager 4th and 5th graders? The answer is clearly, "Nowhere".

In an effort to encourage your participation, the Color Guard would like to give you the opportunity to use a loaner uniform (hunting frock or Regimental, free of charge) until you're able to purchase your own. During this transition phase, as you "build" a uniform, the Color Guard will also provide you with helpful tips and website addresses (see pages 4 – 7). By the way, you needn't be a military veteran to join the ranks of these modern day "patriot soldiers." All that is required is the ability to smile, and wave a flag!

WOULD YOU LIKE TO BE A PART OF THE WASSAR COLOR GUARD?

REVOLUTIONARY WAR MILITARY ATTIRE WAS LESS THAN UNIFORM

The iconic American soldier of the Revolutionary War is attired in a blue regimental coat with red facing. In reality, Americans wore many different military uniforms during the Revolution. In 1777 the Continental Congress ordered 40,000 soldiers' uniforms from France. Half of the coats were produced in blue with red cuffs and facings, and half in brown with red cuffs and facings. A lottery was held to determine how the coats would be distributed. The states that drew brown coats – Virginia, Delaware, Pennsylvania and New Hampshire – could redraw for leftover blue coats. Although a general order in 1779 standardized all Continental Army regimental coats to blue with one of four facing colors – white, buff, red and blue – assigned to each of the 13 states, some of the “lottery coats” may have continued in use.

Variations of American Revolutionary War uniforms, worn by historical interpreters at the Yorktown Victory Center, are pictured here. Musicians' coat colors (top left), shown as red with blue facing, were the opposite of the coat colors of soldiers in their regiment so that they could easily be identified as non-combatants. At top center and right, “lottery coats” are shown in brown and blue, both with red facings. At bottom left, a black hunting shirt represents a militia unit from Virginia's Gloucester County. Bottom center, a regimental coat with white facing on blue represents the Connecticut Light Infantry. A 3rd Continental Light Dragoons stable jacket is shown at bottom right. This regiment was formed in New Jersey in 1777, and many of its recruits were skilled horsemen from Virginia and North Carolina.

Research for the following information provided by Compatriot Bob O'Neal and will provide the new Color Guardsman an idea of the cost of a recommended uniform. (NOTE: All items are not required to make up a complete uniform for Color Guard events)

Regimental Uniform: (preferred uniform for Color Guard leaders and flag bearers)

UNIFORM SOURCES

Uniforms in polyester are less expensive and look dressier, but they cannot be used for firing flintlocks as sparks will burn through this material.

Uniforms in wool and linen are more authentic, more expensive, and less comfortable, and can be used to fire flintlock weapons since the sparks will not burn through.

These are just a few sources. Check the internet for more.

TYPICAL EQUIPMENT CARRIED BY THE CONTINENTAL SOLDIER

PARTS OF THE MUSKET & LOAD PROCESS

Short Land Pattern Brown Bess
 Overall length: 58.5 inches
 Barrel length: 42 inches
 Weight: 10.5 pounds
 Bore: .75 inches

The paper cartridge contains the powder, lube and a ball slightly smaller than the bore.

Ready...

1. Infantryman takes a cartridge from his pouch.
2. He tears the tip of the paper cartridge with his teeth, exposing the powder.
3. Opening the hammer and setting the cock to half-cock position, he puts a bit of powder in the pan, then shuts the hammer.

4. Casting about his musket to his left side, he pours the powder into the barrel, squeezes the ball from the cartridge into the barrel and stuffs the paper into the barrel as wadding.
5. Pulling his ramrod from the musket, he rams the wadding down the barrel to seat atop the powder and ball.
6. Setting the cock to full-cock position, he shoulders the musket, aims and fires.

PROPER WEAR OF TRADITIONAL SCOTTISH ATTIRE

(By Bob Parish)

During the Revolutionary War, many Americans of Scottish ancestry supported the patriot cause. In fact, 19 of the 56 delegates who signed the Declaration of Independence were Scottish-Americans. On the battlefield, those who fought the Redcoats often did so while clothed in traditional Scottish attire.

Recently, there was much discussion about whether or not Color Guard members should be allowed to march in their kilts. The following material addresses the controversy and the agreed upon solution.

As Presented, the suggested compromise actually is very close to what most supporters were seeking approval to wear. It is a good alternative. The 1777 woodcut/image of a Georgia Scottish attire Militiaman was actually on our Georgia Patriot "Continental" money from 1777 to War's end.

Per Mark Anthony: "The SAR Color Guard is a representative body and NOT historically accurate in presentation of Revolutionary War-era Militia, Army, or other supporting Revolutionary War era materials. As such, as stated, a Representation of these Patriots in question would be sufficient."

The kilt uniform would consist of:

- 1) A kilt (Modern/Ancient) (long pleat or short waist pleat)
- 2) Waist Belt to hold pleats, over or under waist coat
- 3) Buckle shoes, boots or moccasins for foot wear
- 4) Stockings knee length of wool or cotton, with or without, garters or leg- buckle ties.
(A great source from Bob O'Neal: Stockings are 75% cotton, 22% polyester, & 3% Spandex and come up to the knee! www.golfknickers.com/)

- 5) A colonial shirt (pull over) white - checkered-raw tan cotton-etc...
- 6) A neck sock-option, colonial waist coat, a bonnet, flop or TRICOR hat
- 7) Ancient Sporrans "only"; sewn skin-leather bags tied at the apex and attached to a waist belt (under coat), or tied around the waist These were in lieu of NO pockets on old/ancient pleat kilts or Scottish clothing.

Accessories:

- 1) Haversack
- 2) Broadsword or claymore
- 3) Dirks/knife/tomahawk
- 4) Musket & cartridge box

NO Modern sporrans, NO modern foot-wear, NO ties (bow or long), NO day coats, NO Prince Charlie Coats and NO modern uniform hats. NO 'dicing' on any article.

A FINAL THOUGHT FROM THE EDITOR:

I am fairly new at this newsletter game, so there is lots of room for improvement. That is where all of the membership comes in.

I need suggestions as to what you would like to see in future issues and I welcome any and all news items/photos that may be of interest to the masses.
